WILL NOT BE TOLERATED.

No Illegal Voters, Insane or Pauper, Will Be Permitted to Vote To-Day.

There is not likely to be a clash of authority at the polls to-day if every body attends to his own business. Peace officers of the United States, of the county and of the city will be present, under instructions to preserve the peace and prevent illegal voting. There is not likely to be any repetition of the outrages perpetrated by "Hawkins' Paw" four years ago, for the federal peace officers of this year are not bull-dozers and bums, while the county and city officers are not likely to try to override their authority. No trouble is likely to occur at any point, unless possibly the Democratic managers should attempt, as they did four years ago and again two years ago, to vote the insane and paupers in the poor-farm. It is reported that this will be done at 8 o'clock this morning, but the Republican challenger will protest every such vote and no illegal votes will be cast. The disreputable performance of Mr. Bynum there two years ago is well remembered. Possibly he had in contemplation a repetition of it when he and Lewis Jordan called at Judge Baker's office yesterday morning and objected to the instructions given to the United States deputy marshals for the election to-day. They claimed that they were wholly beyond the limit of the law and demanded that the judge place certain limitations on them. Judge Baker assured them that these marshals would in no way interfere with the balloting at the polls, but would act simply in case of attempt at illegal voting; that the law gave them no authority to examine ballots before or after stamping, and that they would make no attempt to do so. Judge Baker also said that he believed that the reports of trouble being likely to occur owing to these appointments were greatly exaggerated, but that as they were federal officers and appointed by the United States, their power exceeded that held by State officers, and that they would have to be obeyed. The judge told his callers this firmly, but courteously, and they were forced to leave with what satisfaction they could get out of the interview.

The interview between Judge Baker and Bynum was quite spirited. The latter had on a grudge-bitten mood, and made some assertions about the rights of the States which had an ante-bellum sound. "You talk, sir," said Judge Baker, severely, "much like those who brought on the war of the rebellion. I would like to understand that the question of the supreme authority of the United States over the States is settled by the war. The federal authority is supreme and will be sustained in my court. I hope there will be no clash or trouble. You should advise your friends that the United States law must be respected."

Colbert's Instructions. Superintendent Colbert at roll-call last night gave the non-partisan police force their election-day instructions. The entire night force was detailed for special patrol duty to-day and consequently were excused at 2 o'clock this morning. A reserve force of thirty men will be held at the police station for use in case of an emergency. The men were instructed to see personally, if possible, every saloon-keeper in their beat and inform him that to-day was election day and a legal holiday, upon which his place of business must be closed. They were also instructed to request saloon-keepers to leave their blinds down as a guaranty of good faith. Then followed instructions upon their duties as police officers, and these instructions were a study indeed. While they did not in so many words order an ignoring and total disregard of federal laws and authority in such a way as to lay the superintendent himself open to any action, they were to the effect that the patrolmen should use their own judgment as to when it was proper to make an arrest. This was followed by instructions that as police officers they had a right to and it was their duty to, arrest anybody, no matter who he was, for offenses observed by themselves. This was repeated three different times, and especial emphasis laid on the words "no matter who he is." They were also told that when disturbances were reported to them, but not seen by them, to go or send to the police judge's office and swear out a warrant upon which the arrest could be made. An acting police judge, appointed for the election-day, will be in waiting at the office. In case of a disturbance which they cannot control they were told to telephone to the police station, where the reserve force of thirty men will be in waiting to answer the call. No direct mention was made of the United States officers appointed to preserve the peace, but the tenor of the whole talk of the superintendent was such as to lead the patrolmen to believe that their authority was superior to that of the federal officers.

THEIR ONLY HOPE. Petty Schemes and Crimes Against the Ballot Depended Upon by Democrats. All hope of success upon the part of Taggart, Coy, Wilson et al., depends upon the success of their schemes. The Democratic campaign in Indiana has been remarkable for the minimum of speakers and argument, and, as a fitting corollary, a maximum amount of schemes and money. It is notorious that when the few Democratic speakers of note left the State, St. Sherin and boodle came in. Money enters the necessity of schemes for its successful use. The Journal has discovered a few of them, but by no means claims to have unearthed the full list of so versatile and unscrupulous a generator of plans how to carry elections without votes as the Taggart, Coy and Wilson combine. A few of these, however, are here again recalled:

First, in point of magnitude, is the instructions to Democratic election officers to throw out all Republican votes by some pretext and save three imperfect and, therefore, void Democratic votes by some means or other. Chairman Taggart promises that this will make the State Democratic by fifteen thousand plurality. The end justifies any means with this chairman.

A second scheme of portentous danger is the casting of bogus ballots, smuggled to the voter in the booth or smuggled into the booth by the voters themselves. A third scheme of an alarming character has reached the Republican State committee that such a plan has been set on foot, and will be worked out in the Democratic agency in Cincinnati. It behooves Republican election officers to inspect closely the paper in each State ballot box. The fact that in two or three counties there were discovered evidences that the ballots had been tampered with bears out the fears of the Republican committee.

The colonization of voters is another of the criminal acts which the Democratic committee has no hesitation in arranging for. Chairman Taggart's telegram to H. A. Barnhart, at Rochester, advising him to place the twenty-five voters camping in his locality by last night, is a point in instance. The fact that twenty Kentucky negroes passed through Louisville bound for Indiana, in charge of a notorious Democrat, who has a reputation for election crookedness, is another. There are hundreds of instances of offers to colored citizens in this city to go out of town on election day. All this costs money—has plenty of that was supplied by St. Sherin.

Thousands of dollars have been spent in anonymous circulars, intended to frighten timid voters out of going to the polls. Many of the colored voters were recipients of a circular signed by the "Committee of One Hundred." There is no such committee now in existence. The letter is a sort of White Cap, Kuklux device—perfectly harmless in its intent.

Other circular letters were paid forgeries and cheap and thread-bare tricks. One circular, intended to be printed on a letter head of the Republican county committee, notified the Republican committee members and others that their services would not be accepted. It is a forgery. Another circular, also on the same stationery, informed Republican workers that the committee had $25 to $50 each for them. It is a forgery. Another of the election canards is the Frick story. Frick is a Democrat, and stated last week to a gentleman who was at the Denison House that he will vote for Cleveland on election day. He realizes that it was only the protective tariff that stood in the way of his purpose to crush the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel workers by the Homestead trouble, which he precipitated. Frick is like the Bartholomew county farmer who is against protection because it makes wages too high.

There are other tricks to be played. Republicans have been warned and must be alert.

FARM PRODUCTS AND PROTECTION.

While There Is a Grain of Wheat Just Now, Corn, Oats and Pork Are Higher.

Hon. Warren G. Sayre, of Wabash, was in the city yesterday. While talking with several Republicans about the situation he expressed much confidence that the Republicans will to-day be victorious. "There is nothing to discourage Republicans," he said. "The best of the argument has been ours, and the people are aroused. While riding out in the country in my own county Sunday I noticed a farmer's boy running toward the fence and calling to me. I recognized him as the son of a strong, old-line Democrat. He told me he wanted to vote the Republican ticket, but that his father had threatened to disinherit him if he did. He asked me what I thought about it. I told him he was of age, and had a right to think for himself. Well," said he, "this new law gives me the chance to vote a secret ballot. I am going to stamp the eagle."

"There is one thing our farmer friends should not forget," continued Mr. Sayre. "The price of wheat, while lower than it was last year, owing to boom prices in Chicago, and the Russian famine, is higher, on the average, than it was under Cleveland administration. But if the Democrats insist on attributing the lower price of wheat to the McKinley law, what have they to say about pork? For instance, pork, which was $5.50 per hundred, last year, is now $5.50. It is one of the effects of the McKinley bill. Corn, last year, was 30 cents a bushel; now it is 42 cents. This is another effect of the McKinley bill. I was always able to show to my farmer audience that the McKinley law, in making a bigger home market and a wider foreign market, has been of great benefit to them."

Holt's Sunday Saloon Canvass.

There was a great deal of talk upon the streets yesterday, wherever it was known, about how Holt spent Sunday. He had Tom Hedman, a clerk in the Police Court and a henchman of State Chairman Taggart, running from saloon to saloon on the South Side, buying drinks for voters. He spent $10 in one saloon, $9 in another, $14 in another, $8 in another, and altogether "blew in" about $40. It was generally believed that the county and State committees put up a part, if not all, of this money. Holt, however, was to get the credit of it. He was engaged in making a money canvass among the saloons of the South Side all day Sunday.

Estimate of a Populist.

Rev. W. W. Jones, of Chicago, who has been making Populist speeches, said yesterday, when talking to a Journal reporter: "This State will go Republican to-morrow by from 9,000 to 11,000 plurality. This will be due to the heavy vote that the Populists will have in the State. I have made 203 speeches in the State, and know whether the drift is tending, and whom it will benefit. The tax law and the fee and salary bill that I have introduced will carry several strong Democratic counties."

Lost Some Votes.

The Democratic parade Saturday night failed to make any votes, and lost a few. A Democratic traveling man, who stood and watched the club of alleged traveling men in the parade, was so much disgusted by the imposition that he has declared his intention to vote the Republican ticket. The managers of the parade had simply followed their usual method of drumming up a crowd.

Better Watch for 'Em.

Perry Collins, a Democratic ward-hauler, of Indianapolis, was in Bradford, O., yesterday, going through the boarding-houses hunting for employees of the Indianapolis and Eastern Ohio railroad who are single and hustling them over into Indiana to vote.

No Democrats Left.

There is no large wholesale mercantile house on South Meridian street which is solidly Republican. There were several Democrats in the house when the campaign began, but the tariff and money issues won them over.

MCKINLEY BILL AND CIGARS.

President Kornfeld and Other Cigar-Makers Tell What Its Effect Has Been.

We, the undersigned cigar-makers, would like to ask our fellow-workmen who published a card in the Sentinel purely for political purposes, why the manufacturing industry in our business is rapidly increasing right here at home? And did not what we call the "famous Ninth district of Pennsylvania" make cheaper goods at all times than we did when Sumatra was first brought here? Did they not put Sumatra on cheap goods that we could not even compete with domestic wrapper when the duty was low on Sumatra? Did not the McKinley bill put a duty so high on imported cigars that there are not even half so many consumed in this country as heretofore? Does it not increase the manufacture to-day? Our business never was in better condition. Why not then leave well enough alone? Suppose the Democratic party would let the McKinley bill stand? Sumatra and Havana, what would be the result? We, as workmen, warn our co-laborers to stand for "protection" to American workmen, and cast their vote for Benjamin Harrison. Our union to-day has more members than ever before. We are also receiving $1 more for a thousand cigars made. Since McKinley's bill went into effect there has been more revenue for the government than in our history, showing in itself that business is increasing. Our union has over two hundred members; their dues contained only $1.50 per year, and the McKinley bill is endorsed by a majority of our union.

BOYS' REFORM SCHOOL.

Trustees' Annual Report—Building Condemned—Health of the inmates.

The board of control of the Reform School for Boys, at Plainfield, consisting of Capt. A. D. Vandeol, of Madison, W. C. Ball, of Terre Haute, and Alfred Welsh, of Danville, made their twenty-sixth annual report of that institution to Governor Chase yesterday, for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31. They report the largest number of boys in the school at any one time during the year to be 520; and the average attendance to be 422; 129 boys were admitted during the year, and 266 boys released. Eighty boys were recalled to the school during the year, either because of improper surroundings or unsatisfactory conduct.

The trustees report the main building, erected about a quarter of a century ago, to be unsafe for occupancy, and they recommend that it be torn down and rebuilt and enlarged. This building has been sinking for fifteen or twenty years, and they say that the Legislature be requested to appropriate a sum sufficient to do the work.

They report the discipline of the school to be first-class, and the health of the boys for the year rather better than in previous years. They continue the same estimate of the cost of keeping a boy in the school to be $120, which is a little over 32 cents a day. They favor a still further development of the trade schools and report the introduction of a preparatory department during the past year. They pay a tribute to the services as a trustee of Dr. H. N. Helms, who was so long connected with the reformatory, and who died in September. They also express their high esteem of the services of Judge S. J. Peelle, who during the year resigned from the board to accept a judgeship in the Court of Claims at Washington, D. C. The annual appropriation for the school is $70,000, which includes all the cost of repairs, etc. At the end of the year the school had a cash balance of $60 a year for the care of each boy from that county they report the net cost of the school to the State Treasury to be $40.21. They urge the purchase of more land, as the present farm (225 acres), is not sufficient.

Supt. J. J. Charlton, in his report, reviews the work of the year. Since he has become superintendent 2,300 boys have been admitted to the school, and nearly that number have become useful men. Some fell, but the great majority did well. The Superintendent speaks regretfully of the resignation, as chaplain, of Mr. Brown, who for four years and a half, was the chaplain of the school. He also expresses thanks to Rev. Father E. H. Gavick, who has without cost to the school, made regular visits to instruct the Catholic boys in their faith. But few deaths occurred during the year. Deducting those who are known to have died, there are 325 boys out in the world who were educated and trained at the Reform School. The boys are all contented and happy, and very few remain that long. The average time of detention at the school is two years and four months. Eighty-six of the boys now in the school are colored.

A HEAVY WEEK.

Enormous Amount of Mail Matter to and from This City.

For the past week the volume of the mail to and from this city has been enormous. Pension day helped to substantially swell the bags. It has been a hard week for postal clerks on all roads running into this city, and particularly to the attaches of the postoffice. Superintendent Patterson, of the mails, gives the new machine for the canceling of stamps much credit in the work of dispatching all the mail promptly. By the use of it the clerks were enabled to keep up the speed of the machines. Four hundred of these canceling machines have been rented by the government for one year and distributed at the great mail centers. They are being found sufficiently expeditious and may be adopted by the department.
